

Tellings and Retellings

Andrew K Twohig - Archon Philosopher

REJECTING WITHOUT PROOF SOLIPSISTIC SKEPTICISMS

Any coherent metaphysics must take heed of the sum total of human history, both accepted history, alternate histories, and defects of historical recording. What is not considered in this or indeed any metaphysics is any of the swath of radical skepticisms: that is for example, we reject that the entire universe was created this morning with all of us having false memories of our past lives and that artifacts of all recorded history were spontaneously generated arbitrarily or towards some agenda. This individual or collective solipsism, while of passing interest and unable to be disproven, is an embrace of radical nihilism and frankly reflects only logical possibility with no substantive reason or experience to justify placing any credence in this.

REVIEW OF MULTI-CONSCIOUS METAPHYSICS

Assuming the metaphysics detailed in this Treatise, that is we accept that there is a sentient being who, due to a combination of its cognitive structures and the world it imaged (our world) which allows for the overhang of pre-time (as in the Delayed Choice Quantum Eraser Experiment), then the history of the world is replete with many hidden events, many distorted histories, much subterfuge and likely those with agenda to maintain control over humans by controlling the narratives of history. Thus, we may contend that the artisan of the world, what Plato referred to as the Demiurge, is the mover of human history, that earth is a node in this Demiurge's Type III Civilization, that this real estate may have been used by other sentient life forms before, and that the Demiurge is very much older and, given the evidence of the craft that fly in our skies, much more advanced technologically. Thus, we can remain secure to some extent that had the Demiurge and its Archon allies wanted humans extinct, humans would have been made extinct a long time ago or never been created, and should events change, can be made extinct quite easily.

Given that the proposed mechanism for the Demiurge to have originally created the universe, and Field of Experience, was by means of a collapse of the wave-function of this universe, there is the need to include a multi-verse component into discussions of history. I will begin discussion of history and of the Telling and Retelling using a singular time line and detailing the general flow of human history, and only later on introduce ideas of the multitude of temporary congruent and similar universes that are spawned and die and may get integrated into the central core that reflects our shared history: that is, the shared history of humans and Archons. While we all live in a natural universe, created by the natural process of a collapse of a wave-function, humans live in a controlled environment unaware of larger structures, the Archons who now oversee our node were themselves likely once in our position, being rustic and overseen by more technologically advanced species. In fulfilling their roles as Watchers over this and perhaps many other nodes, the Archons defer to the Demiurge species as the originator of our universe.

HISTORY

History, which is most certainly not a subject for modern scientific investigation as no one as yet can travel backward in time to conduct an experiment, is that direct line of information from the past to the future. Old books, artifacts, monuments, buildings, carvings, paintings, genealogies and other stored information reveal that the Wider Western Civilization has a roughly 6,000 year old history, roughly equivalent to the inception of writing. Other large civilizations have similar timelines, but I restrict myself to discuss the Wider Western Civilization, encompassing from the eastern border of Persia, through Mesopotamia, up from Egypt, through Anatolia, Europe and its colonies.

Certainly, any credible information that the timeline is discontinuous, with resets or jumps, needs investigation. However, when multiple sources indicate a similar thrust with multiple confirmations, we may take such a timeline as (conditionally) established. Thus, the 6,000 year old history of writing, of architecture, of mathematics, of urbanization, and of other cultural features is demonstrated in ancient Egypt, ancient Mesopotamia, and ancient Persia; ancient Greece was a relative late comer. From surviving documents and artifacts we get a story, a story shrouded in time and altered to suit tastes and edited and re-edited, but there nevertheless remains a story.

THE TELLING

6,000 years ago the Archons were sent to mentor humans, as had likely been done numerous times by the Archons with other sentient beings. These Archons are likely genetically related to humans, as the Demiurge most probably used its own DNA to create all the Archons in turn. Humans are merely an Archon-in-waiting. There are countless carving, sculptures, and stories of beings from the sky, gods, from the ancient Egyptians, Persian, and Mesopotamians to establish the thrust of this assertion. In addition, Apocryphal writings from the time of Enoch also describe the same or similar descriptions of giants and Nephilim, Watchers and angels. This is the Telling. This is how advanced species may seek to jump start a sentient species into rapid development.

In practical terms, the first task had been to seed planet earth with the DNA set of plants and animals; the DNA being based upon the originary Demiurgic DNA. Once these seeded life-forms had proven themselves as sustainable, and the candidates for sentience had proven naturally resilient within the bio-sphere, a number of advanced creatures visited, mentored, sped-up the developmental process, and attempted to expedite their agenda at various points across world. The Watchers/Archons arrived in whichever form and method allowed the humans to remain calm and to accept the introduction of tools, of ideas, of the basic materials that would help humans build their own civilization. There are certainly issues in translation of ideas between different sentient creatures; however, the goal is likely that in order to accomplish the overall objective, human development must reflect human ways.

However, as human women were so very lovely, it appeared as though the first batch of mentors, the Titans, were attracted and had procreative relations; thus causing big problems. There are so many reports of this hybrid breeding and the subsequent deluge to rectify that situation that it is uncanny why there is so little discussion of it. This uncanny silence is likely due to a concerted effort to keep humans focused on their task and not to get sidetracked into questioning where they are. Indeed, the very purpose of this Treatise is to establish a non-magical metaphysics and to shed light on the silencing of the question of where we are.

THE RETELLING

At some definite end point of the transition in question, the “Plan A” of mentoring by active participation of “gods”, was changed to a “Plan B” of a monothestic deity, with the breaking point known as the deluge. This deluge may have coincided, purposefully, with extreme plasma releases from the sun, extreme magnetic shifts causing human confusion, and other timing issues that made use of various metaphysical fields, expressed as a flood. In any case, no longer would open interaction occur between Archons and humans with the immediate result that humans were now on their own to accomplish any objectives anticipated by the Archons and Demiurge. It should be mentioned that the basis of any of these objectives is that “all life requires resources”, including the life forms of the Archons and the Demiurge. Further, it should be understood that these resources are not small amounts, as a Type III Civilization requires massive resources and the objective for humans is likely to provide massive amounts of resources to warrant the investment made in terms of time investment by the Archons, as well as for the “real estate” investment of the wondrous planet earth, replete with sun, moon and Dyson-like sphere.

Thus, the Retelling occurred after the deluge and had muddled and contrary descriptive goals including to 1) reframe and recapture or whitewash the involvements of those now problematic Titans, 2) stop humans from questioning the nature of the Titans, or any polytheism, in general, 3) refocus on the objectives of the Demiurge and Archons while simultaneously hiding the existence of Archons and Demiurge, 4) ensure that humans are unaware of their controlled environment, 5) attempt to tangle up past Archonic involvements with both Socratic morality and with monotheistic metaphysics and dogma.

Original stories of Ptah, Zurvan, and Nammu in the areas of Egypt, Persia and Mesopotamia respectively certainly became less definitive as experience was replaced by fuzzy memory after a lapse of centuries of time. The Greek Retellings with their own names and understandings of the “gods”, the gnostic interpretations, the post-diluvian Apocryphal and Biblical writings all contain both retellings of the original stories of the antediluvian ancients as well as shards of hermeneutically available descriptions of what today we also see in the sky, of the interactions of the Archons and Demiurge. This last point is critical. The content of both the Tellings and Retellings accord with descriptions of what human experience regularly in the current era: this is not a past and finished event; rather, this is a past and continuing event: an on-going 6,000 year-long experiential topology.

As to the current myriad of sightings and interactions, certainly we may disregard one report by one person who seems to seek fame or sanity, but the reports by multi-observers with video and radar interventions leaves little doubt that Archons, aliens, angels, other sentient creatures by whatever names do appear to large groups of people and this cannot be summarily and wholesale dismissed as a hoax or delusion.

The War of the Titans occurred as a re-telling of the change of earth Archonic overseers, as the “Olympians” arrived to fix the problem. Given the current flux and dislocation, as well as the dangers posed to Archons by viral engineering, quantum computing, artificial intelligence, practical hypersonic weaponry, metaphysical break-throughs, Double-slit and Quantum Eraser experiments, and other activities at the very boundary of the Field of Experience, we are encouraging action to reign in inadvertent human aspirations as a purely defensive move by the Archons to protect themselves and their interests. In other words, we may be approach the cusp of “Plan C”.

NEED FOR CAUTION AND HERMENEUTICS

In either the Tellings or Retellings, I will contend that no single sentence or artifact from history can be taken as "fact", "definitive" or even "true at that time". It is very likely due to lack of groundwork, that explanation for the workings of some matter were limited by both the poverty of language in the past and by a lack of modern scientific findings to serve as a basis for understanding. For example, what is readily and easily explained as a genetic Set, is really not understandable to any mind previous to both Darwin's Theory of Evolution and the 1953 publication of the discovery of the mechanism of change, DNA Double Helix, by Crick and Watson. Thus caution is needed to interpret via a hermeneutics what was attempting to be explained and the likely terms that we would use today. In the Revelation of Ezra, he speaks of a smoke and fire three-headed eagle; well, as there were no flying craft in 300BCE, we could not expect Ezra to use the word "helicopter", "airplane", or "spaceship", but the most powerful of flying creatures, the eagle, would be a reasonable way for Ezra to describe to contemporaries what he saw: to us, we may reasonably speculate that a better term than "eagle" would have been "flying craft".

Further, I will encourage people to not fetishize specific dates, or referral to time periods as exactly this length or that length, or locations as having exact importance, or any specific detail as warranting defensive argumentation. Rather, it is more fruitful to establish general arcs of concord between events of the past and events of today in order to gain useful insight into the events of today.

We may make allusion to the common parlor game of speaking a sentence around a room from person to person: by the time it arrives back, it is almost certain to be different, often very and humorously different, and occasionally completely destructively different. Multiply this nature of communication by hundreds or thousands of people and across hundreds or thousands of years, add in fundamental issues of misunderstanding complex ideas, and the result is a need to confirm whether some oft stated experience in the past, as translated into the current lexicon, accords with a similar experience today.

To attempt to gain any information previous to extant historical artifacts is pointless, and this includes any reference to geologic or paleontological records. As it is asserted that we live in a controlled environment that is subject to on-going creation or regeneration by collapse of a wave-function, and that this process depends on a meeting of a conscious creature with un-collapsed wave-functions and information, one can collapse underground geologic features replete with isotope markers as long as there had been no information about that structure beforehand. One is astounded that there were no mentions of dinosaur bones in any curio collection of any king or emperor previous to establishing the foundation of Darwin's Theory of Evolution. The implication is that the bones appears due to a collapse of a wave-function with information about ancient dinosaur species: as long as there was no information already existing about the contents under the ground. This interplay of individuated consciousness and the lived-in world speaks of the idea of Carnivalization, developed by Mikhail Bakhtin, with the caveat that Laws of Physical Nature will be held.

Thus, historical records are valuable not only as instructive, but as a stabilizer for certain features of the natural world and for human cultural artifacts. As a personal note, I had predicted that in order to stabilize the previous collapse of the wave-function of earth itself (likely by one of the Archon species), information would need to be updated world-wide on a continual basis, as modern physics has detailed that electrons "jump" out of their orbits and probabilistically may "reappear" anywhere in the universe, the farther away the lower the probability. Thus, these electrons are available to be recollapsed by any conscious creature and it is the presence of the Fast Mover Craft which deny humans access to collapsing these "unformed electrons", thus preventing humans from gaining an understanding of the power of human consciousness. The plethora of video taken with high definition super high frame rate is now able to document these Fast Movers continuously monitoring the surface of our earth.

TO SUMMARIZE

Telling is a direct documentation response to experience, a recounting of the stimuli that one encounters in one's own life. A retelling is hearsay on someone else's stories or on a second-hand experience.

Daniel's accounts of the Watchers, for example, is a Retelling as it was not Daniel who saw the Watchers but Nebuchadnezzar. Further, Nebuchadnezzar's experience was post-diluvian and was in a dream, not an direct interaction. Similarly, we may and should inquire as did established author Whitley Strieber upon having a similar type of experience of Watchers, aliens, Archons, angels, as to why such experiences occur so often over the 6,000 year history, and what is the relationship, if any, with the mass sightings of the Tic Tac, Black Triangle, et al.

It appears as though in order to correct the excesses during the antediluvian period, that a double deception was needed to calm humans, and direct them onto the correct path. This double deception involves denying humans access to awareness of their ability to collapse a wave-function – this was partially revealed to humans in the Double Slit Experiment; the double deception also requires that humans remain unaware of the nature of the earth as a controlled environment – findings of the modern experiments of Michelson-Morley, George Airy, and others were aggressively downplayed and all but forgotten with a fanciful and unproven Special or General Theory of Relativity.

The Archons/angels/Watchers/Guardians/Nephilim/aliens/incubus/gods and all other descriptions of non-human sentient creatures as involved in our space has also be purposefully relegated to a conspiracy of unbalanced minds. That this purposeful deception, as misdirection, also means destroying findings of modern scientific experimentation seems of no consequence in the larger picture. The task of humans, vis-à-vis the Archons, thus apparently requires that humans not think about 1) a multi-consciousness universe, 2) earth as a controlled environment. Thus the shift from Plan A to Plan B removed the troublesome Archons and replaced them with more distant and less friendly Archons, while restricting human curiosity to those areas deemed fruitful by the new set of Archons. We are likely farmed by the Archons and Demiurge in much the same way as a beekeeper farms the bees: the bees are not injured, the bees do naturally what they do; the bees are herded by smoke and moved here and there; occasionally a hive must be destroyed but there are many, many others; and beekeepers do enjoy the taste of honey while recognizing the energy that the bees generate. As postulated, the purpose for humans is to collapse the wave-function of the lights on the Dyson-like Sphere into actual physical resources; providing a massive resource base for the Archons to gain electrons, or whatever else would be available.

MULTI-VERSE COMPLICATIONS

As seen in the Double Slit Experiment, it is information available to a conscious creature that allows the collapse of a wave-function into a particle. This availability may occur directly with information presented on a screen visible to a sentient creature, or it may be information available on, say, computer memory with no sentient creature actually viewing it, but only potentially later viewing the stored data results of the Detector. As discussed elsewhere, any question of “how does the particle know it is being observed with information gained or not” is nonsensical and is as misdirected as asking how does one moment in time “know” to occur after another moment in time. In both cases, this question of knowledge is misplaced for the Law of Physical Nature Time as it is for Law of Physical Nature Collapse of Wave-function. Both of these Laws are equiprimordial and neither require nor are subject to other Laws of Physical Nature, but are simple and self-contained.

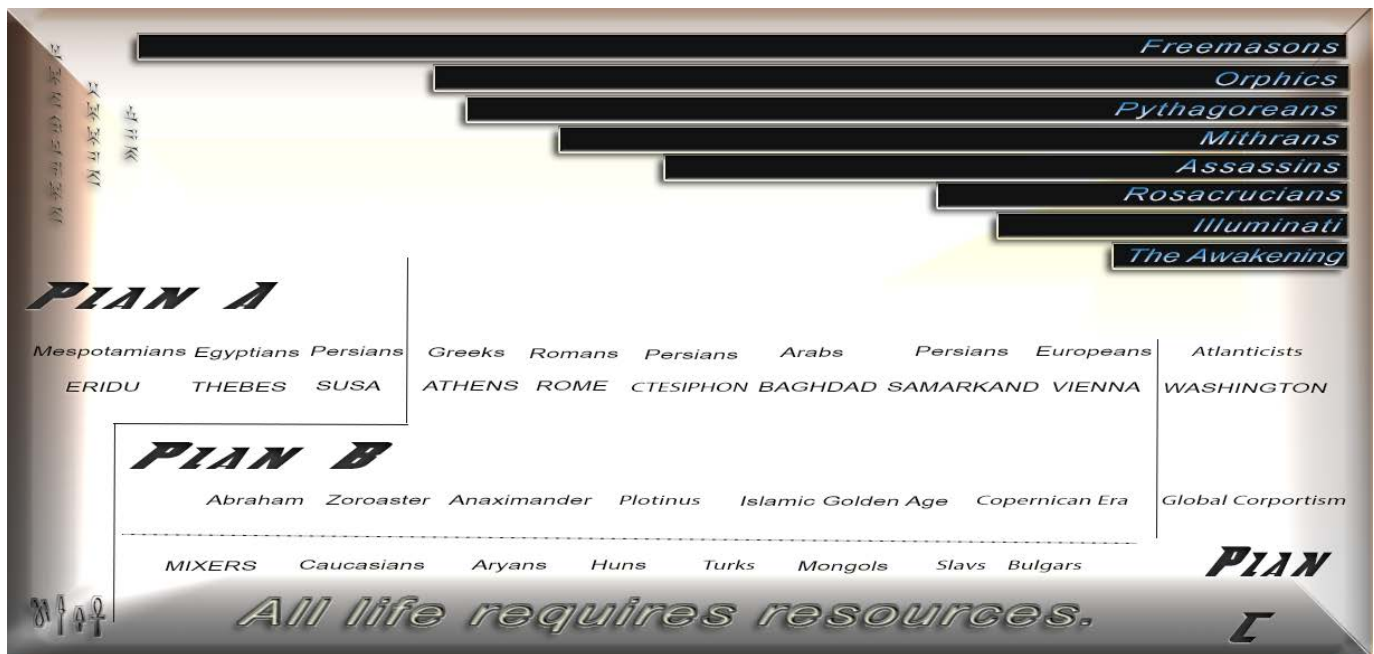

Thus, as long as information remains available to a sentient creature, then any parallel collapse remains in force and serves as a parallel field of experience moving in a slightly different direction. However, one can quickly see that one very quickly forgets most of the choices that were made yesterday and thus there is no information available about those choices – to myself or to any other sentient creature. We can speculate that with the lack of information about those choices, those parallel pathways lose force and fade into irrelevance. The advent of the internet and mass storage is certainly creating such a multitude of multi-verses that in previous days of writing journals or books just could not document and maintain available information available.

As the core choices, like the center of a wake behind a boat, move forward, the less documented, less important, less remembered, less accessible choices start to fade away almost as quickly as they arose. But for those central, long-lasting multi-verse options, the Demiurgic species remains able to make use of the overhang of pre-time in each of them to peer into the future, gain information, make a choice, and then collapse-the wave-function of that choice. In an act of pure speculation, I will put forward that the Demiurge has the ability to collapse wave-functions of earth that can merge various timelines into one, given the Demiurge's ability to gain information from choices that do not actually yet exist. This may also be possible in partial forms, with one part of the world remaining on one time line merging into another part of the world from another timeline. Again, this is pure speculation.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, humans are wise to rely on repeated, intersubjectively verifiable experiences and findings of modern scientific experiments. This, however, is not possible in uncovering historical knowledge, and in this regard we must use a wisdom of “putting oneself in the shoes of another” to gain an appreciation of how people in the past thought, accepting pre-modern limitations of the words and ideas that they used. By doing this, we may effect some type of reasonable translation to identify similarities with experiences of the present. This all needs to be done recognizing, perhaps, that there is a purposefully designed strategic double deception to keep humans unaware of their actual state of being. As a motto to help thinking; one should never allow an unproven theory to negate what people experience. As a reminder, once a theory is proven, it becomes experience; it becomes fact; it becomes truth.

The above diagram outlines various actors in the 6,000 history of the Wider Western Civilization.