

A Multi-Consciousness Universe

ON-GOING INTERACTION WITH NON-HUMAN SENTIENT CREATURES

As put forward in The Book of Ages, our universe is inhabited by a multitude of sentient creatures, one of which – the Demiurgic species – had the capacity to collapse the originary wave-function of this universe, via the mechanism humans have recently verified within the Delayed Choice Quantum Eraser Experiment. We may name these other sentient life-forms Archons, but many other names have been used in history: angels, Nephilim, aliens, Watchers, Guardians, gods and others. Confirmation about the presence and interaction of non-human technologically advanced species is not derived only by past documents or implications of modern scientific experiments; rather, the now massive number of mass-sightings with video and radar of technologically advanced UFO/UAF craft in our skies demonstrates that this is an on-going and normal feature of living on earth.

These creatures, the Demiurge and Archons, are not super-natural: they are living creatures with natural input-output systems and require resources individually and collectively, building and maintaining a Type III Civilization, of which earth is an experimental node. Given that the Demiurge likely expanded its universe (our universe) by means of growing and nurturing other sentient species, it is probable that Archons and Demiurge are genetically related, as likely are also humans. Given also the massive time scales, each of the Archon was also likely tested and nurtured before being elevated into higher technology and given greater responsibility in the Type III Civilization that all of us are a part of.

METAPHYSICAL QUESTION

The metaphysical question is best stated by Gottfried Leibniz as “How is it that there is something rather than nothing?” One limitation in asking and answering the metaphysical question in the past was placing either a human exclusivity or human centrality as to who gets to answer this question. One purpose of the multi-consciousness ontology and metaphysics is to consider that each sentient creature in this universe must arrive at the same explanation of the source of all.

Upon recognizing the importance of the Delayed Choice Quantum Eraser Experiment, it became clear that there is a structural feature (the overhang of pre-time) of this universe that allows for information about a future event to be accessible in the past. Thus the “bootstrapping” or reciprocity problem, which Aristotle solved by assuming “the Unmoved Mover”, has been solved without need to appeal to magic supernatural forces or causes. The Demiurge, at least one member of this species, via forward-looking from the past of a universe with this overhang of pre-time structural feature had the ability to gain and use this information to collapse the originary wave-function of the universe that it then found itself in the middle of. From this moment, this individual Demiurge and the other members of that species merely continued along its historical path, growing and seeking resources to sustain itself. Eventually, growing other sentient life forms via genetic engineering of its own DNA was likely the most accessible option for the Demiurgic species to sustain itself.

Given this mechanism to create universes, it is imaginable that there are many non-associated universes with their own originary sentient creatures making use of some similar overhang of pre-time structure feature of its universe to collapse a wave-function to bring those universes into their own being. However, in our universe, we propose that sentient creatures were developed and grown within a now Type III Civilization within our compact universe, with each sentient life-form inhabiting its own node, each a structure with a Dyson-like sphere protecting it and providing environments to nurture eco-systems.

Thus, for humans asking the metaphysical question, we would obviously use the lights in the sky as a basis for imagination and explanation; however, as these lights in the nights sky are part of the controlled environment of our node, our use of these lights as guides leads humans in precisely the wrong direction. This is part of the double deception. In a multi-consciousness universe, humans must consider that other sentient creatures may have a hand in our intellectual history and our very ability to gain raw material to answer the question of how did where we are come to be.

HALF OF THE DOUBLE DECEPTION

To be sure, there are pretty composite images produced by NASA, and there are unshakable beliefs in dark matter or dark energy to save the “standard model” of the universe in order to save both the Copernican Hypothesis and the General Theory of Relativity. However, the current state of metaphysical disarray reminds one of the period relayed to us from ancient Mesopotamian, Egyptian and Persian documents about the metaphysical disarray about 4,000 years ago. Then, Archons (gods) had been taking undue liberties with human women and violating the agenda of nurturing sentient creatures within their own node, free of contamination of hybridization. This confusion about the status of the “gods” and of humans seems to have elevated the metaphysical question to the detriment of the agenda of the Demiurge and Archons.

The event of the deluge reset the whole metaphysical approach, replacing a polytheistic system with a monotheistic system, establishing a more distantly and easily controllable hiding of the Archonic involvement in human affairs. Apostasy, heresy, conspiracy, insanity and other terms to justify punishment for metaphysical questioning were instituted until freedom of speech allowed open discussion, an era we are currently still enjoying. Thus, we may provisionally conclude that reducing the influence of and closely controlling the metaphysical question seems to be a primary objective of the Archons; in 2022, we are entering a period where such questions again are becoming primary and superficial, magical and other answers are waning in providing satisfaction.

BREAKAWAY CIVILIZATION

I will not detail the extremely long list of all the recent mass sightings of space craft, as they are well-documented in so many other places, but one can still appreciate that if a person has not had a close encounter of some kind, one understands his or her denying the existence of super high-technology flying craft. But, once having such an encounter in a mass setting, people are convinced for life. Yet, the well-documented attempts by esoteric secretive government and non-government agencies and entities justify a dismal and disrespectful lack of transparency on their publically funded documentation while simultaneously denying the importance of such documentation. This infantilization of human-kind is a strategy of managing information asymmetry to the advantage of certain groups of humans against the interests of other less-well-informed groups of humans.

The jockeying for position and repositories of occulted, hidden, information among groups indicates that there is value in knowledge about non-human sentient creatures, that there is action under the surface in regards to this most important question, and that malevolent fools have been in charge of managing this situation for far too long. It is obvious that there is zero value on “secrecy” of this matter as it is unimaginable that the Archons do not already know this process of sentient creatures seeking to reveal/achieve open disclosure, as they already have vast experience in dealing with emerging sentient creatures. One may reasonably assess that the multitude of extant sightings is disclosure, but that open disclosure is unambiguous constant or repeating interaction without any attempt to hide but with an acceptance to reveal the Archonic presence as Archonic presence.

Obviously, once disabused of the deception of either a God-created or infinite magical big bang universe, humans collectively would be able to recognize that the Archons/Watchers/angels/Nephilim/gods have an interest in humans that is beyond human wants and needs, and would immediately redirect human attention to decipher the unknown and difficult to understand wants and needs of these ever-present Archons/Watchers/angels/Nephilim/gods. One current fear is that upon open disclosure, that the mass of humanity will simply be moved from one position of weakness in one manner of information asymmetry to another position of weakness with a different picture of information asymmetry. This potential is of a Cargo Cult mentality for humanity, enslaving humanity's imagination and understanding to a hand-me-down dictates of the Archons. There would be some humans inured to this Cargo Cult effect, namely those who now possess accurate esoteric knowledge. This group would comprise both those of the Breakaway Civilization as detailed by the Richard Dolan and those in a growing network of independent thinkers who with better access to information and ready support networks are recognizing the untenability of the web of misinformation that has been fed to them for millennia.

CONTROLLED ENVIRONMENT AND SOLIPSISM

Given that the cognitive structures, as a rewording of Immanuel Kant's Categories of Thought, of humans and of non-human sentient creatures are likely very different, we may ask: Whose conception of the universe is the real conception? To this, one needs to understand that there is no universe without having an individuated sentient being both 1) collapse the originary wave-function for that universe and 2) maintain the collapse of that universe by interaction with it. Thus we arrive at another inroad into Martin Heidegger's notion of being-in-the-world-with-others. Here, for any and all sentient creatures, there are essential structures of the universe that must hold, and as being in effect, these structures are inseparable from, as interlacing structures, simultaneously of both sentient beings and the universe. This universe, our universe, has a being of collapse-of-a-universal-wave-function-of-a-sentient-being-from-among-a-sentient-species-being-in-the-world.

In other words, for the originator of this universe (the Demiurge), for one of this species to exist there must be many of this species existing; this is not true of any genetically derived or engineered species. Thus one necessary structure of the universe is being-among-many, necessary for the first species and then allowable for all others. These structures like the Laws of Physical Nature are locked together in a stable topology as a Field of Experience, with all essential structures cascading outwards from the originary collapse of the universal wave-function creating individuated conscious creatures that individually encapsulate the Laws of Physical Nature of the universe itself. We may here cite the adage: As above, so below.

Thus despite each individuated conscious creature uniting in miniature all the Laws of Physical Nature of the universe, an essential nature of the universe is that individuated conscious creatures exist as being-with-many. Working backwards, the universe needs an originator to collapse the universal wave-function, the originator needs to have a causal trail to abide by the Law of Physical Nature Causation; this causal trail for creation, nurturing and maintaining of life requires families and communities; thus, the structure of the universe includes the non-solipsistic being-among-many.

Thus, it is incorrect to imagine this universe without having at least one sentient being as integral for this universe's very being; but once created, the universe requires any sentient being to complete the tasks of maintain this collapse of this universe. We can say that no sentient being has privileged access to a universe-in-itself, as all access by all sentient beings are real access, potentially the only access, and there is no God's-eye-view to adjudicate between one sentient being's conception and another sentient being's conception. All sentient species' conceptions are equally distant from experience, equally immersed in experience, and thus equally able to speak on experience. The universe has no final and singular judge of which species conception is correct or incorrect, true or untrue.

This is not to say, however, that each sentient creature has control over the shared space of our shared Field of Experience and universe. This would imply that one sentient being's re-imagining of the world as in a thought form hallucination or a willed re-collapse of the wave-function of some part of the world has effect for all others: such an individual power would create unsustainable instability of the universe, eventually making any life impossible. There is no evidence that such powers exist. Rather, while the originary collapse of the universal wave-function may have been effected by a singular individual member of the Demiurge species, from that time on, they, then we all, have lived in a shared and stable universe with maintenance of any needed re-collapses of solitary wave-functions occurring by each individual sentient creature, mostly unknowingly.

Further, as the cognitive structures may lead to very different conceptions, translations of what is experienced may have great difficulties that approach unraveling a synesthesia of cognitive structures. Again, as any individuated set of cognitive structures is required to both originate the universe and to maintain the universe, none of any of these cognitive structures has privileged access to "how the universe really is". How the universe really "is" always depends upon a the members' of a sentient species conceptions. The universe given the myriad of sentient life forms that likely exist in our compact universe has many viable, sustainable, and likely wonderful descriptions via the myriad variety of cognitive structure and languages, human and non-human.

Some conceptions may provide advantages in certain areas, disadvantages in other, opportunities not easily accessible to other sentient species, and other differences; but all of this does not mean that there can be a Field of Experience independent of all of these sentient beings, as the universe is a direct result of a) the interplay of an originary individuated conscious creature with an imagined universe with a fitting structure and b) continued maintenance of many sentient creatures to allow 1) a collapse of the originary wave-function from the overhang of pre-time, and 2) a variety of cognitive structures to establish understandings that allow for sustainable living.

OWL OF MINERVA

There is a concern on the author's behalf that in any major un-veiling of truth that this moment would be quickly covered over by a necessary veil of deception. This "necessary" may be both or either a function of the agenda of the Archons and perhaps their agents on earth, and/or a structural feature of the Laws of Physical Nature that creates an unfinalizability of knowledge, where the Law of Physical Nature Consciousness (via an individuated conscious creature) may not subsume or dominate the other Laws of Physical Nature, thus the fabric of the Field of Experience will tend to maintain that balance between all Laws of Physical Nature.

Based on historical movements, the unveiling seems to always be accompanied by a re-veiling. The Owl of Minerva is a symbol of wisdom and of universal knowledge. The saying is that the Owl of Minerva only flies at night; too late to make any type of real impact as a new day (a new world) is about to demand that new questions be asked, old questions will seem foolish, and humans will fall back into their state of complacency and trust. In point of example, how many people ask or even care about the answer to "how many angels can dance on the head of a pin?"; now imagine your most important question being as summarily dismissed as you so summarily dismissed that question.
